MAHOMET'S FAITH.

In the succeeding years he returned to Mecca, overcame the Koreshites, and was acknowledged as sovereign and Trophet, and in a few years subjected Arabia to fits rule. In the ninth year of the Hegira he proclaimed his first holy war against the Byzantine or Greek Empire. This was a complete failure. The next year he noade his celebrated pilgrimage to Mecca, at the head of forty thousand pilgrims. Three months after his return to Medica he was taken serionsly ill. He announced his own death in the mosque, and prayed that God might support him in the agony of death. He letionly one child, Fatima, who became the wife of Ali.

Students of Moslem literature concede that Mohammed was a man of great power. He was acquainted with the doctrines of both Jews and Christians, but in his lectures to his followers misrepresented both. His visions were received in a state similar to that made so familiar by clairvoyants and spiritualists. The spasmodic convulsions which attended every manifestation of revelation, as described in the records were very similar to the phenomena connected with large of the property of the prop lar to the phenomena connected with clairvoyant speaking, etc. He announced himself as the restorer of the pure religion revealed by God to Abraham. He required Pagans to leave their idols and worship the one true God; required Jews to exchange the law of Moses for what to exchange the law of Moses for what to exchange the law of Mores for what be claimed was the neg and final revelation given to him; and required Christians to cesse worshipping Christ as God, claiming that this was inconsistent with the doctrine taught by Christ himself. Many trace the religion of Mohammed to the forms of Judaism and Christianity existing in Arabia at the time, which he interningled with the traditions and allegories of his race.

The fundamental doctrine of the Koran, or of Mohammedanism, is this: "There is but one God, and Mohammed in the first hard the doctrine of the Koran, or God, hard Mohammed and Mohammed and the Cornel of God does not differ in material points from that fleb by Christians, except that they reject entirely the doctrine of the Trinity. The Mohammedans believe that Adam, Noah, Abraham, Moses, Jesus and Mohammed were divinely commissioned to proclaim ase laws and dispensation; that the prophets were revealed certain scriptures inspired by God; that sil these laws perials of the couple lived apart. On Sunday last Andrew went to the house where the will be some substitute, and that he was the Son of God, and that he was a creatified, believing that asony to the complete in the second coming of Christ, as herald, and the second coming of Christ, as herald, and the mutation of the word of other person suffered in his place, while he was taken up to God. They believe the second coming of Christ, as heralding the approach of the last judgment. As to future life, they believe that God will judge men by their acts in this life; that the time of resurrection is known only to God; that after Judgment, all men must pass over a bridge, "timer than a hair and sharper than a sword," the good passing over easily, the wicked falling headlong to hell; that all who believe in the unity of God will finally be released from punishment and enter paradise, while idolaters and hypocrites suffer ternally.

The Mohammedans observestrictly the outward forms of their religion, regarding the Koran as the rule of their released from punishment and enter para-dise, while idolaters and hypocrites suffer

They advanced into China, swept over Judea, establishing great empires, and mastered a portion of the Greek Empire. Then they were in turn overrun by the Tartar tribes, led by the Turks, but these adopted the religion of the people they conquered and became its champions, and in 1543 they captured Constantinople. This was the golden age of Mohammedanism, and the Ottoman Empire was at the zenith of its power. Forty years afterward the Mohammedans were forced out of Western Europe, and there has been a gradual decidence. There came dissensions in their own reads and the clinical into the Constantinople. Its promulgation and rapid rise in power were at a time when the Christian religion was beset by enemies on all sides. It is noticeable that in no case did a Christian nation conquered by a Mohammedan nation espouse the Mohammedan religion. Mohammedanism succeeded against a lower type of civilization, but never against a higher. It overran the Roman Empire of the East, but the Christians remain Christians to this day.

As the Koran, written twelve hundred years ago, with Arabic life in mind, furnishes the political system for Mohammedan intons, they have made little progress. Hepatitis or Liver Complaint, DYSPEPSIA AND SICK HEADACHE.

ns of a Diseased Liver. PAIN in the right side, under the edge of the ribs, increases on pressure; sometimes the pain is in the left side; the patient is rarely able to lie on the left side; sometimes the pain is felt under the shoulder-blade, and it frequently extends to the top of the shoulder, and is sometimes mis-taken for a rheumatism in the arm. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness; the bowels in general are costive, sometimes alter-native with lax; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation in the back part. There is generally a considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a pain-ful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. A slight, dry cough is sometimes an attendant. The patient complains of weariness and debility; he is easily startled, his feet are cold or burning, and he complains of a prickly sensation of the skin; his spirits are low; and although he is satisfied that exercise would be beneficial to him, yet he can scarcely summon up fortitude enough to try it. In fact, he distrusts every remedy. Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but ca have occurred where few of them existed, yet examination of the body, after death, has shown the LIVER to have been extensively deranged.
